IRVI, the Indus River Valley Institute, Pakistan's first Culture and Heritage Think Tank, in collaboration with the Eclectic Leadership Movement

Is this for you?

You carry years of experience, and you want to pass it on well: to your company, your team, the next generation, your community or the land.

You are asking how to lead with purpose, and what you will leave behind.

You value reflection as much as experience, and conversation as much as action.

You believe leadership can be thoughtful and eclectic, and that the best lessons are shared rather than taught.

You are ready to bring your own piece of the puzzle, and to take something new home.

10 handpicked leaders, change makers and thinkers like you.

Stories told where they belong

Why is this different from a corporate retreat?

After dark
Storytelling, poetry and live music, with artists and artisans.

Learning by making
Craft alongside artisans. Nobody explains it from a stage.

Around the table
Curated dinners and cooking with local chefs.

Pause and reconnect
Barefoot walks, silent retreats, rain meditation, then the fire.

What you take with you

Clarity	About yourself, the skills you need to progress, the service you are here to give to others, your community or company
Connections	With yourself, with others across cultures and generations, with the natural world
Confluence	Of our shared human values, above and beyond our differences

$999 per person · 10 guests, by application

- Includes stay, meals, sessions, activities and materials
- Airport transfer included
- Travel arrangements excluded: flights and visa fees
- Applications close at the end of 2026
